

YOUNG AMBASSADOR PROGRAMME

At Scottish Swimming we believe all of our young members should have a voice within our organisation to help shape what we do in the future. You can get involved and have an impact on Scottish Swimming by joining the Young Ambassador Programme, becoming an Advocate and Ambassador for our sport.

We know that there are thousands of young members in our 160 affiliated clubs who are passionate about their sport and want to stay within the sport to help shape its future in Scotland.

If you are a confident communicator who is reliable, approachable and are passionate enough about your aquatic sport (swimming, water polo, diving, open water, synchronised swimming) to represent the collective views of young people within your club, why not join the Young Ambassador Programme? Here are more details about the role and how to apply:

“I’m really passionate about the sport and also about young people having their voices heard. It’s a really exciting project”

“The Young Volunteer programme gives an opportunity for young people to give back to their sport and also to get more from it.”

Kirsty Ewen Young Volunteer Programme Ambassador

WHAT WILL YOU DO?

Attend a weekend residential where you will work with a team of young people from across aquatics in Scotland. As a team, you will help formulate young people priorities and come up with suggestions to present to the top people in Scottish Swimming and the Districts. As a group you will work together to promote your message and influence positive change for young people in your sport.

WHAT ATTRIBUTES DO YOU NEED?

- Good communication skills — listening and speaking
- Reliable and honest
- Approachable and friendly
- Persuasive
- Confident to give your opinion

HOW MUCH TIME DO YOU NEED TO COMMIT?

Attend the weekend residential – Friday 22nd November (evening only), Sat 23rd November, Sunday 24th November at University of Stirling

Attend a networking day with the chair of clubs on the 14th December in Edinburgh.

Work with other young people using online meetings to deliver your priorities. These will be at times that suit the majority online.
