

Back to the Water Route Map

A Framework for Returning to Aquatics in Scotland

Foreword

Euan Lowe

Chief Executive
Scottish Swimming

We have updated this Back to the Water route map to reflect the latest Government announcement (30 July 2020) and outline the impact on different areas of our sport, on the decision-making processes and on the facilities that would make a return to water possible. This is very much a living and evolving document created with flexibility to allow for movement forward or backward if necessary through the phases in reaction to Government advice or our partners who run the swimming pools and facilities. Our route map has two key parts:

- 1. Back to the Water: Facilities and Participation
- 2. Back to the Water: Club Training and Competition

Our consultation and working groups continue to progress plans in order to develop a safe return to swimming and aquatic sports for all. However, any plans and decisions will be made and adjusted in the best interests of the health and safety of our members, and will be based on the advice issued by the Scottish Government and NHS Scotland. This route map, however, will hopefully provide everybody involved in our sport, an outline picture of how we are looking to move forward and take a systematic and progressive approach to getting “Back to the Water”. We started small in Phase 2, following Scottish Government guidelines to resume training for performance athletes at the National Swimming Academy, taking learnings from the process to inform future planning and to help address potential challenges when club activity becomes a reality.

We continue to work across the sector to finalise the detailed guidance that sits behind these A number of detailed guidance documents around pool operation, club management, club training, community swimming and swimming lessons are in the final stages of development and require Government and sportscotland approval prior to issue. We will publish these documents as soon as they are approved and I’d like to thank our members, volunteers, staff and partners for your continued patience and ongoing work to develop a as they have been approved safe return for our sport which we will all look forward to.

Context

The 'Back to the Water' route map on the following two pages outlines our approach, the decision-making processes and the impact of the COVID19 lockdown and subsequent phases on aquatics. The tables explore the possible route back to swimming and all aquatic disciplines from the perspective of pool operators, workforce, clubs, members and the impact on participation, training and competitions. Further detailed guidance will be published in due course for each of the phases. It cannot be assumed that any progress will be linear or that there will be a simple transition from one phase to the next. Smaller steps may be taken between phases and there may be regressive steps but the approach is designed to be flexible based on Government advice and announcements, and in consultation with facilities across Scotland.

The decision-making process that will influence the content of this outline plan and our approach will cascade from Government and all detailed guidance that sits behind this overview are subject to Government and sportscotland approval. Please note it may take time to gain approval following any Government announcement and Scottish Swimming guidance must be followed before taking to the water.
